Your man... Here — and in Ottawa

Get two things straight about Sean O'Sullivan right from the start. He may be young in years but he's been around politically. He's no rubber-stamping yes-man.

Ottawa Journal
March 1973

He will concentrate his talents on very human issues . . . and have an important role to play in the history of Canada.

Maclean's Magazine
January 1974

Hamilton-Wentworth MP Sean O'Sullivan has found briefings on problems of NATO and Europe's relations with Ottawa "very impressive". The 22-year-old Conservative, youngest member of a delegation of nine MP's, met the NATO Secretary General and other top officials.

The Spectator
January 1974

Sean O'Sullivan has a maturity that comes to the very special few who work with and for the Chief. A great deal of Dief's political wit and wisdom has rubbed off on Sean. Sean will be a man to watch in Parliament — and Dief, among others, will be watching.

The Atlantic Advocate
February 1973

He's young, keen and conscientious and there's little doubt he'll be a good member for his constituency.

The Spectator
January 1973

There are people in this country who swear that Sean O'Sullivan will be Prime Minister some day. They say he has that rare certain something that makes great men.

The Canadian Magazine
March 1973

. . . the pipeline is a national priority, he said. The question of steel supplies from Hamilton was raised in the Commons yesterday by Hamilton-Wentworth MP Sean O'Sullivan.

The Spectator
December 1973

Sean O'Sullivan is a leader who seeks the best for those he serves. Not only is he willing to offer his service but he is capable as well. He is definitely an asset to our society.
